The DA Management Staff had initially limited us to 3 examples of individual excellence (submitted with Ken's memo dtd 23 Apr) but later asked us to submit additional examples. They expect the nominees to receive a personal letter from the DCI commending them for their performance.

The attached additional items were suggested by PD, P&PD, [redacted], & NBPO, and we have added 3 from IMSS.

Recommend you approve and sign the cover memo to the EO/DDA.

C. Procurement Division - Procurement personnel within OL can be characterized as younger, better educated, higher paid, and more experienced in the procurement field when compared to other federal procurement professionals according to data available from the Federal Acquisition Personnel Information System for Fiscal Year 1984. This group also handles on a day-to-day basis a comparatively higher workload than other procurement organizations with similar contracting environments. This is indicative of a "can-do" attitude and excellence spirit that pervades the OL procurement organization.

The Coopers and Lybrand Report, a study conducted by an independent contractor to perform a comprehensive review of the Agency's procurement system, documents the heavy workload of the typical Agency procurement professional. On the average, procurement professionals within the Department of Defense elements the Coopers and Lybrand Report selected to study initiate 13.4 contract actions per year with a total value of $14.5 million. Agency procurement professionals, on the other hand, handle approximately 78 actions per year with a value of $16.9 million.

The high volume of transactions by the Agency's procurement organization is to a degree an indicator of the current under staffing problem, but is mostly attributable to the high caliber and excellence of its procurement officers. This group of individuals is indeed deserving of recognition.

2. These are just a few of the many examples of excellence our personnel perform every day. We cannot begin to record each and every instance. The above is intended to give you some idea of the vast scope of activities Logistics personnel are involved with. If you wish to elaborate on any of the above, please do not hesitate to call.
